What's a greenway?

A greenway is a corridor of open space that may protect natural resources, preserve scenic landscapes and historical resources or offer opportunities for recreation or nonmotorized transportation. A greenway may also connect existing protected areas and provide access to the outdoors; may be located along a defining natural feature, such as a waterway; along a man-made corridor, including an unused right-of-way, traditional trail routes or historic barge canals; or may be a greenspace along a highway or around a village.

Greenways in Connecticut cover thousands of acres throughout every county in the state and may include paved or unpaved trail systems, ridgelines, or linked parcels of open space. Many other communities around Connecticut have chosen, through greenway designation, to recognize the importance of river corridors for natural resource protection, recreational opportunities, and scenic values. The CT Greenways Council webpage contains details on how to propose designations, get assistance, and view a map of our State Greenways.

Your purchase of a Connecticut Greenways license plate will make a difference! These plates both raise the public awareness of the importance of our greenways AND provide funding for state and local efforts to preserve, restore and protect our greenways. Greenway systems offer an exciting opportunity to reestablish connections between the State's natural and cultural resource base and its people. It has been said that greenways connect the places we live to the places we love.

Greenways License Plate Applications

The CT Greenways Council meetings are open to the public. The Council meets at 9:00 am on the 2nd Tuesday of each month (except August, and December) virtually and/or at the offices of VHB, Inc. located at 100 Great Meadow Road Suite 200, in Wethersfield, Connecticut. Contact Kimberly Bradley, DEEP Trails and Greenways Coordinator, to be added to the meeting announcement distribution list at kimberly.bradley@ct.gov.

The Connecticut Horse Council is looking for someone to replace Stacey Stearns as an equestrian representative on The GREENWAYS Council.

2023 GREENWAYS AWARDS

The Reddington Rock Riding Club has been committed to doing trail maintenance and creation of trails in Shenipsit State Forest and beyond for many decades. The trail work is meant for everyone to enjoy but especially equestrians. RRRC members have donated hundreds of hours to maintaining the trails in the Northeastern corner of our state and through partnerships with land management entities such as the Northern CT Land Trust, the towns of Somers and Stafford, and CT DEEP, and will continue to do so for years to come.

The CT Greenways Council recognized this organization for their work at their annual Awards Ceremony on Friday, June 2, 2023 held at Hammonasset Beach State Park.

L to R: Brie Messier, Arlene Doherty, Susan Taricani, Monty Moses, Annie Moses, and Kimberly Bradley, CT Trails and Greenways Program Coordinator, Bureau of Outdoor Recreation / Division of State Parks and Public Outreach Connecticut Department of Energy & Environmental Protection

Statewide Comprehensive Outdoor Plan (SCORP)

Several surveys were sent out to various user groups and individuals to target as many people as possible. The surveys provided the opportunity for individuals with various outdoor recreation interests to express their views and to help shape the future of outdoor recreation in our state Thank you to all equestrians that participated in the Avid Outdoor Enthusiast Survey!

CHC members Diane Ciano and Ann Moses were on the Advisory committee and represented the horse community in their comments to several of the surveys. Top needs of the horse community were trailer parking to access to our state parks & forests, more camping areas for equestrians, better maintained trails, signage, etc.

The goals of the SCORP:

Goal 1: Provide equitable & sustainable access to outdoor recreation in Connecticut.

Goal 2: Protect, conserve, and manage Connecticut's natural, cultural, and historical resources as they support outdoor recreation.

Goal 3: Enhance visitor experiences with clean, safe, well-maintained outdoor recreation areas and facilities.

Goal 4: Foster awareness and relevancy of the benefits of participation in outdoor recreation, while promoting the significance of historical, cultural, and natural areas.

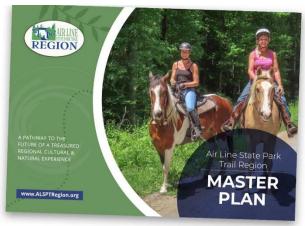

A few of the results of the surveys:

Out of 51 activities of outdoor recreation activities:

- Horseback riding came in 6th out of 5,210 responses at 4%
- Horse camping came in 17 out of 5,108 responses at 1.6%
- 2,031 responses to questions regarding if people's needs were not completely met in trail related issues:
 - 1. Limited/Lack of Access generally or legally
 - 2. Trail Related Issues need more, limited access, damaged, etc.
 - 3. Land Issues need more for hunting, biking, and other activities
 - 4. Maintenance Issues vandalism, poor upkeep, dirty facilities, etc.
 - 5. Limited/Lack of time

For more details of the results of the surveys, please contact Diane Ciano

The Air Line State Park Region Master Plan Availability and ALSPT Region Website - Funded by CT DEEP Rec Trails Grant

As the twelve towns and the CTDEEP look toward the future for the Air Line State Park Trail, the trail experience is inspired by its history as a railroad. The name of the rail line and the trail is derived from drawing a straight line through the air between Boston and New York City, hence Air Line Railroad or Air Line Trail. Similar to the effort to build out this multi-use trail, the rail line construction from the 1840stothe1870s involved challenging terrain, bridges, voluminous cuts and fills to ensure a flat grade for a train's journey from Boston to New York City.

The Air Line State Park Trail is an ongoing linear infrastructure project that began when the State of Connecticut took ownership of it in 1969. As a multi-use rail trail and linear state park and as segments have been completed over time, the trail has been described in the various sections shown at right. Within each of these trail sections, trail bed conditions vary from passable for hikers or horseback riders, compacted stone dust for multiple uses included bicyclists with hybrid tires and bicyclists with aggressive tread tires for mountain biking. There are sections near the more urbanized center of Windham that are paved and the newest addition in East Hampton will be a boardwalk carrying trail users over a significant gap in the trail, a drainage area designated as wetlands by the Army Corps of Engineers. There are incomplete sections extending from the current terminus in Portland to the Arrigoni bridge and a section between Pomfret and Thompson travelling through Putnam's commercial center, which is another more urbanized section of the trail.

The Air Line State Park Region Master Plan can be found both on the CTRC&D website AirLine State Park Trail - Connecticut Resource Conservation and Development (ctrcd.org) and the www.ALSPTREgion.org website

Horse Owner's Corner- Timely Tips – Disaster Preparedness for Horse Owners Dr. Jenifer Nadeau, UConn Equine Extension Specialist and CHC Education Chair

When it comes to disasters, a lot of us think about wildfires. However, we also picture catastrophic flooding. Flooding is actually the most common type of natural disaster. About 40% of all natural disasters worldwide involve flooding. According to National Flood Insurance, in a 30-year mortgage, a home has a 26% chance of being damaged by flood vs. a 9% chance of being damaged by fire. Flooding is a year-round threat. River flooding is the most common type of flood in the United States. Flash flooding is the leading cause of weather-related deaths per year, causing approximately 200 human deaths per year and an unknown number of horse-related deaths or injuries. The leading cause of death in large animals during Hurricane Andrew in 1992 included animals killed in collapsed barns, electrocution, kidney failure secondary to dehydration and animals hit and killed on roadways or tangled in barbed wire after escaping from their pasture. Hurricanes, and tornadoes as well as snowmelt and thunderstorms can contribute to flooding.

Disaster preparedness involves reflecting on hazards that threaten your family's safety and that of your animals and developing a plan on how to prepare for these hazards. There are 4 phases of emergency management: mitigation, preparedness, response, and recovery. Mitigation is preventing future emergencies or minimizing their effects. Preparedness is preparing to handle an emergency. Response is responding safely to an emergency. Recovery is recovering from an emergency.

The foundation of emergency management is personal responsibilities. That is the familiarity with the potential for disaster in your community and the creation of your own emergency plan to care for your animals. The next step is local government responsibilities which include emergency response planning, response, and assessment to protect your community. You can think here of the text messages you get notifying you of the hazards present in your community such as a severe thunderstorm or your local Community Emergency Response Team (CERT). State government responsibilities include protection from statewide disasters, provision of financial assistance to underfunded communities, and review of local emergency plans. You can think here of the Statewide Animal Response Teams (SART). Federal government responsibilities are at the top of the pyramid and include protection from and declaration of national disasters, provision of financial assistance if needed and coordination of disasters through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

Flooding results when heavy or continuous rainfall exceeds the absorptive capacity of soil and the flow capacity of rivers, streams, and coastal areas causing the watercourse to overflow its banks onto adjacent lands. There are two types of floods – slow rising floods and fast rising floods. Slow rising floods move down a river or stream and can be predicted to reach a certain height. Fast rising foods are flash floods that usually result due to extreme heavy rain, melting snow, dam failure or levy failure and occur suddenly.

Things to consider in the short term are:

- You may not have much time to react, so you need to have a plan in place.
- You should have a disaster kit on hand in case of emergency.
- You should know how you will evacuate your horse, and have a trailer ready or one you can borrow if needed.
- You should have a way to identify your horse in case you get separated.

Here is what you should have in your disaster kit:

- Feed at least a week's supply in airtight, waterproof container, rotate feed every 3 months
- U Extra feeding bucket for each horse
- One week of water for each horse, can use 50-gallon barrels, store in a cool, dark location

- U Extra water bucket for each horse
- One week's supply of shavings/straw
- Extra pitchfork
- Extra wheelbarrow/muck bucket
- First aid kit
- Grooming supplies including shampoo, sweat scraper, etc.
- Antibacterial soap
- Antibiotic ointment
- U Sterile gauze sponges & pads
- 2 to 4 disposable diapers or wrapped sanitary napkins
- U Bandages Ace, 2 ½" gauze bandage roll, leg bandages
- Adhesive tape 1" and 2" rolls
- 2-4 quilted or padded wraps
- U Household scissors and/or knife
- O Tweezers
- U Ice bags or chemical ice pack
- Rubbing alcohol
- Veterinary or human rectal thermometer
- Lubricant
- Stethoscope

As mentioned, you should also have ways to identify your horse. Consider these options. Use a livestock crayon to write your name, phone number and address on the horse. Use clippers to shave your name, address, phone number into the horse's coat. Braid an identification tag with your name, address and phone number into your horse's mane. Have at least 10 recent photos of your horse including some with you in it – keep them in sealable plastic baggies in your disaster kit with other important documents, medications and insurance papers. Keep a copy of the Bill of Sale for your horse or other documentation that can prove ownership with your disaster supplies. Have your horse microchipped. Have your horse branded. Have your horse tattooed.

There are also some long-term considerations. You need to know what you will do if you cannot return to your home/property. You need to have a place that you can stay for a while until you can return to your home/property. You should have a way of identifying your animals in case you need to set them free (worst case scenario) or reclaim them from a shelter. You should write on a piece of paper the name, address, phone number of your regular veterinarian, and keep it with your other important documents for your horse since you may not have access to a cell phone or charger. Locate a mobile equine veterinarian you can use in event of a disaster if you don't already have one in case your horse is too injured to be moved for treatment. Write out a release form authorizing another party to give medical treatment for your injured or sick horse, and keep it on file with your regular vet and an alternate vet. Give a copy to your neighbor or who will take of your horse if you are away.

By being prepared for a disaster, you will keep your horse and yourself safe and hopefully save money as well on any bills that may arise from serious issues. I hope that you have fun with your horse this summer. Stay safe! Please call (860) 486-4471 or email jenifer.nadeau@uconn.edu if you have any questions. Also, check out my web site

Upcoming Meetings:

Do you know that there are only 11 horse organizations left in Connecticut? We once prided ourselves as having the largest number of horses in the country per capital!

Equestrians are leaving the state, the youth has not come up to take over our aging volunteers – times have changed

We need to come together as a community more than ever

We invite a representative from each organization below to discuss the ways we can outreach into the horse community as well as the non-horse people.

Recently there was a dog attack on a horse at Machimoodus! There have been many others throughout the years. Will there come a time that DEEP and other land management entities decide not to have horses on the same trail?

What can the equestrian community do as a community service to promote multiple use trail, provide education to other trail users and whit can we do to protect our horses when a dog attack happens.

You invited to our upcoming meetings where this will be discussed and how we can go forward in educating the non-horse public as well as DEEP and our Animal Control officers.

CT Horse Council Meeting: Tuesday, October 2nd -7:30 pm
